

SALDA

A photograph of a dining room set in a historic room. The room features peeling plaster walls with faint frescoes and a large, ornate doorway in the background. The dining set consists of a dark wood table with gold-colored metal legs and a matching sideboard. There are eight chairs with light-colored upholstered backs and dark wooden frames. The table is set with white dishes, glassware, and three large brass vases filled with greenery. The floor is covered with a large, light-colored rug.

From our love of research and passion for technical and decorative experimentation comes Double Wood, a new range of creations developed from an iconic piece in the Salda collection.

Starting with our original Art Deco-style eight-legged table with double wooden marquetry and hand-crafted bronzes, it's an extension of a collection that features nine different ideas, all of which share a refined modernist aesthetic and the use of traditional crafting techniques.

Every creation in the new SALDA line represents:

REINTERPRETATION

a rereading of the tastes and styles of the past, reworking them in a modern style

a unique combination of natural materials, stained Tanganyika wood and maple, giving a refined Black & White effect

the ability to adapt traditional crafting techniques—from marquetry to the casting of bronzes—to produce ranges and decorations with a modern flavour

Bronzes, which feature on our Standard 8701 table model, are distinctive characteristics of all the new pieces in the extended collection.

They are created using the traditional art of casting.

Originating from an idea and a hand-drawn design, they lend a highly distinctive touch to all our Art Deco-style models.

Maple

The bronzes are produced and mounted on the finished pieces entirely by hand.

The new extension of the Salda collection is accompanied by a series of fabrics mixed and matched on a mood board, a representation of a particular lifestyle. The selection of fabrics based on patterns, textures and colours completes the style offering and aims to provide useful, refined furnishing inspiration.
